

EW-2: Respond Effectively to Hazardous Weather

Key Risks

- Limited availability of airspace in high volume situations that often occur in the northeast during severe weather.
- Arrival and departure routing within terminal areas is limited by what can be accommodated adequately within prior environmental studies.
- Major additions to routes in terminal areas require design studies including environmental impact assessments.